Dine fine in Las Palmas de Gran Canaria

Do you love eating out? Anfi have teamed up with one of Gran Canaria's leading restaurants, Las Palmas de Gran Canaria's Restaurante Ribera de Río Miño, to offer our members the chance to enjoy a meal of a lifetime. This eatery's one of just two establishments on the island nominated for 2015's Qué Bueno Canarias Heineken IV Best Canarian Restaurant award.

Located between the capital's iconic Plaza de España and Spain's greatest urban beach, Playa de Las Canteras, Restaurante Ribera de Río Miño's a temple to traditional Galician cuisine. Although they take advantage of their oceanside location to offer the freshest fish and seafood. And they're not afraid to experiment. Tuna accompanied by soy sauce anybody? The Restaurante Ribera de Río Miño have put together a special Anfi menu.

This would work out at 2.800 Points a couple. Clearly, we're talking haute cuisine here.

A glass of premier fizz, Cava Juvé y Camps, and tortitas de camarón (shrimp pancakes) welcomes couples to the restaurant. Followed by a selection of starters to share. They include atún en salsa de soy (the aforementioned tuna), pulpo a la gallega (octopus Galician style), and revuelto de bacalao y ajetes (Scrambled eggs with cod and spring garlic).

Main courses are a choice of merluza al azafrán (hake with a saffron) or bife con papas fritas y pimientos asados (steak with fries and roast peppers). Partnered with a half of bottle of wine per person. Either the white, Lagar de Cervera Albariño, or the red, Viña Albina Gran Reserva 2001. Take your pick from the mouthwatering desserts prepared on the premises. Before finishing off with a liqueur. And an appetite well and truly satiated.
